ABSTRACT

The object of the presentation is to expose the work that leads the National Government of the Republic of Argentina, towards the building of a territory adecuated to the model of development with social inclusion, which has as guidelines regional integration, productive diversification and encouragement of internal consumption. At first place, it exposes a synthesis about the historic pattern of territorial development, about the investments in infrastructures that built it and about the subordinated role of spatial planning. At second place, it summarizes the production process of the Plan Estratégico Territorial (PET) -its contents and main achievements-. And at third place, in the context of the second fase of PET`s development, exposes the advances related to increase the integration between planning and territorial investments, like infrastructures and equipment for transport.
